Emergencies, including power shutoffs, can interrupt your normal routine and support systems. Planning ahead could increase the odds that your access and functional needs are met if you evacuate quickly or shelter in place. Taking responsibility by creating a disaster plan and to-go bag is the first step in maintaining your health and independence. All your information should be current and because it is personal keep it in a safe but handy place in your home.

Identify your capabilities now and what assistance you may need after a disaster by filling out this information sheet. Think in terms of everyday necessities but also your unique needs, which may include medications, assistive devices, service animals and support services. Skip those that do not pertain to you.

If you are storing these supplies, make sure they are in a sealed waterproof container, preferably placed high off the ground. Creating and maintaining these supplies may be too expensive. Determine what you will need to maintain your health. Work with your providers, family, friends or faith-based groups to help you create a shelter in place kit.

Next Steps

Have an action plan with family, providers and vendors letting them know how they can support you should you need to evacuate or shelter in place. Have at least three different means of transportation if you do not have your own vehicle. Make sure all your identified support people know that they are in your plan. Consider giving a copy of your house key to one of your support people if you are comfortable with that. Contact local utilities companies if you are dependent on power for assistive devices. Learn how to shut off your utilities. Review your plan with your support system at least annually and keep all important information current.
